Prince George County, VA is located 25 miles southeast of Richmond, the state capital. The county is just two hours from the nation’s capital and thirty minutes from Richmond’s fine museums, sports and restaurants. Within a two hour drive are the famed Blue Ridge Mountains and the beaches of the Atlantic Ocean. America’s Historic Triangle and Civil War battlefields are an hour away. Ft. Lee, a military installation which serves as the site of the Quartermaster school and provides administrative and logistical support to the Army, is located in Prince George. Children living on post are served by the county school division. Several colleges and universities are located within a 60 mile radius of the county.
